

Q Or was he buying anything else at the same time than the property?

A No, he just asked for the two pieces.

(Mr. Clapp) We object to the conversation.

Q What was done next?

A Well, after we made the bargain he told me he ^{would} let me know when to come to Frederick. So I came up here and he had the deed ready and everything.

Q Where did you go to execute the deed?

A Wherever that lawyer's office is. I don't remember now.

Q Miss Hettie Hahn was the stenographer?

A That's right.

Q You went there and signed the deed? A. Yes.

Q And received the check? A. Yes.

Q Did your brother Everett ever complain to you anything about the deed or about the transaction? (Objection)

A No, sir.

Q Now, coming on up to the death of Mr. Everett Moxley, you attended the family meeting there, did you?

A Yes, sir.

Q And you all agreed, I believe, that Mr. Williams should be the Administrator of the estate? A. Yes.

Q And when was that agreement and when was that meeting arranged?

A The same night that he died.

Q Do you know when Mr. Williams qualified as Administrator?

A When?

Q Yes? A. No, I don't.

Q You don't know. You attended the funeral? A. Yes.

Q And you saw Mr. Williams there? A. Yes.

Q Did you have a talk with him?

A A little talk; very little.
